PETITIONING THE COURT

To modify the conditions of supervision as follows:

CAUSE

While in the custody for his original sentence, Mr. Alexander-Durr was unable to provide an approved release address. Subsequently, the undersigned officer attempted to facilitate placement at a Residential Reentry Center (RRC) upon his release. However, the offender refused to sign the required documentation.

On June 7, 2013, William Ward Alexander-Durr appeared before the Honorable Cynthia Imbrogno, U.S. Magistrate Judge, on a summons to show cause why his terms of supervision should not be modified to include placement at an RRC. Given that he did not have an approved release address, he was taken into custody pending a hearing before Your Honor on June 18, 2013. In the interim the undersigned officer investigated multiple residences that Mr. Alexander-Durr proposed to release to. All of the proposed release locations have been denied. On June 11, 2013, the undersigned officer coordinated with Mr. Alexander-Durr's attorney to review the modification of conditions to include RRC placement.
